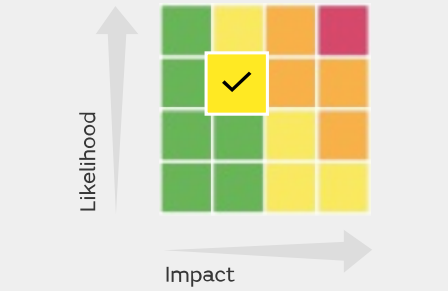
Lightning may cause some impacts across Scotland

What to expect

- Some short term loss of power or other utility services may occur
- Possibly some damage to some buildings/structures

Further details

Recent developments suggest another surge of frequent lightning activity until Saturday evening affecting parts of western and central Scotland short-term, and perhaps eastern Scotland by this evening. Although heavy rain is possible, perhaps with locally 10-15mm inside an hour later today, lightning strikes seem the more likely hazard.



Medium likelihood of low impacts
